CHAPTER I

INTRODUCTION

A. The Background

Everyone had a right to communicate the thoughts or opinions. The definition of the word “communicate” is to share or exchange information, news, or ideas. W.H. Newman and C.F. Summer, 1977 defined that communication is an exchange of facts, ideas, opinions, or emotions, by two or more persons. They told their ideas or opinion by using their own words. Some of them used the annoyed words, impolite words, rude words, etc.

In this era of technology, the need of expressing idea, opinion, information, or thought were completed well by using social media. For example instagram, this kind of social media was used to share some activities of the user, like a photo, video, caption, and another uses, then the followers or netizens were provide the comments’ column to deliver their response and opinion based on the activities that users shared. In that case, if we looked at the comments, we would find some rude words, rough word, offensive word, or dirty word which was used to attack someone they didn’t like. It was called as hate speech. It was needed to know the meaning of the hate speech and also the forms of hate speech because many types of the hate speech which was uttered by the speaker. And it was needed to know the intention of the speaker or the netizen who uttered it so it needed the study about speech act.

Generally, the object or victim of the hate speech is someone who is famous, for example influencer, selebgram, youtuber, actress or actor, even president. According to UNESCO (Gagliardon, 2015), hate speech is as a message of hatred that reflects an expression of incitement to harm (specifically discrimination, hostility and violence) against certain social or demographic groups, such as defaming, threatening words, or encouraging acts of violence.

To know the intention of utterers, it used the study about speech act especially about illocutionary. Illocutionary speech act is a particular intention in making the utterance. On the illocutionary side, the hearer's interpretation of the speech act performed by the speaker will depend (Riemer 114). So, we would understand the meaning of utterance of the netizens. The types of speech act were divided into five, they are assertive, directive, commissive, expressive, declarative.

Based on this reality, the writer chose the hate speech as the object of this research. The object of this research was netizen's comments on Donald Trump's instagram account. The netizen's comments on Donald Trump's instagram account was taken as data resources of this research.

The researcher observed the speech of netizens in Donald Trump's instagram comments' column and analyzed the types of hate speech. Research on hate speech was also conducted to analyze the types of illocutionary speech act that was uttered by the netizens on Donald Trump's instagram account. The researcher hoped this research was useful to inform knowledge about hate speech. And this research was also expected to be a reference for someone who want to do the research in the same topic

CHAPTER II

THE REVIEW OF THE LITERATURE

A. Theoretical Framework

1. Speech

Speech (speaking) is the process of building and sharing meaning through the use of verbal and non-verbal symbols, in a variety of contexts (Chaney, 1998, p. 13). Speaking is a productive language skill (Sanggam Siahaan, 2008, p.95). It means that speaking is a person's skills to produce sounds that exist at the meaning and be understood by other people.

2. Hate Speech

Hate speech can be interpreted as words, behaviors, and writings carried out by individuals or groups in the form of provocation, incitement or insult to other individuals or groups. Hate speech usually touches many aspects ranging from race, color, ethnicity, gender, disability, sexual orientation, citizenship, to religion and others (Teja, 2017). Moving on from this kind of understanding, it can be said that all expressions of hate speech are realized through both verbal and nonverbal language that aims to discriminate, intimidate, dominate and create hostility and violence.

UNESCO as a United Nations (UN) organization defines hate speech (Gagliardon, 2015), as a message of hatred that reflects an expression of incitement to harm (specifically discrimination, hostility and violence) against certain social or demographic groups, such as defaming, threatening words, or encouraging acts of violence.

The European Court of Human Rights, in a definition adopted by the Council of Europe's Committee of Ministers, considers 'hate speech' as: "all forms of expression which spread, incite, promote or justify racial hatred, xenophobia, anti-Semitism or other forms of hatred based on intolerance, including intolerance expressed by aggressive nationalism and ethnocentrism, discrimination and hostility towards minorities, migrants and people of immigrant origin.”

YouTube, in its community guidelines describes hate speech as content that promotes violence or hatred against individuals or groups based on certain attributes, such as: race or ethnic origin, religion, disability, gender, age, veteran status, or sexual orientation/ gender identity.

The UN’s International Committee on the Elimination of Racial Discrimination understand`s hate speech as a form of other-directed speech which rejects the core human rights principles of human dignity and equality and seeks to degrade the standing of individuals and groups in the estimation of society.

The Broadcasting Complaints Commission of South Africa considers hate speech to be material which, judged within context sanctions, promotes or glamorizes violence based on race, national or ethnic origin, colour, religion, gender, sexual orientation, age, or mental or physical disability or propaganda for war, incitement of imminent violence, or advocacy of hatred that is based on race, ethnicity, gender or religion, and that constitutes incitement to cause harm.

In a report on the results of a crime seminar conducted by the United States Holocaust Memorial Museum in 2009, entitled "Hate Speech and Group-Targeted Violence; The Role of Speech in Violent Conflicts" proposes a suggestion to consider the speech context in interpreting a case of hate speech. According to the report, it is very important to consider who delivered the hate speech, the intent of the statement, and to whom the statement was delivered. This is important because hate speech as a language includes inciting, insulting, vilifying, and a call to violence that targets certain individuals or groups.

Nwabuzo, (2014, p. 7) defines and explains it as : A public expression of hate towards a person or a community because of its race or ethnic origin, sexual orientation, gender, age, disability, religion or belief.

2.1 Types of Hate Speech

In the Chief of Police Circular Number: SE / 06 / X / 2015 concerning handling hate speech, it is stated that hate speech can be in the form of actions stipulated in the Criminal Code (KUHP) and other criminal provisions outside the Criminal Code in the form of:

a. Insulting

Insulting is attacking the honor and prestige of a person. Insult was defined as an action if an insult is directed at a person or group of people based on religion, race, ethnicity, religion, ethnicity, gender, disability, sexual orientation. Insulting is an action to bring down one's soul. Usually this insulting is carried out by expressing utterances that contain harsh words, invective which impairs one's reputation and honor.

b. Defamation

The definition of defamation is the act of defaming someone's prestige or honor by stating something in spoken or written.

c. Denigration

The definition of denigration is the action of unfairly criticizing someone or something.

d. Unpleasant Action

The definition of unpleasant Action is a speech that contain threats, coercion, violence or oath. This unpleasant behavior indirectly interferes with the comfort and safety of individuals and groups.

e. Provoking

The definition of provoking is a speech to make someone or people angry. Provoking can be defined as an expression of incitement to discrimination, violence and hostility. Speech delivered in this case triggered a public misunderstanding and would have an impact on hostility or war.

f. Inciting

The definition of inciting is the word or sentence which had the intention of encouraging, persuading, rising up or inflaming the spirit of someone to do something. The word “incite” has the attribute “intentionally”

g. Spread hoaxes (Hoax)

The definition of spread hoaxes (Hoax) is the expressions of hatred by spreading the news that is actually not true (lying) or known as hoax news aims that other people trust the news, so that other people are affected. Lately a lot of people have heard false news so that people can no longer choose whether the news is true or not.

3. Illocutionary Act

Speech act is divided into three parts: locutionary act, illocutionary act and perlocutionary act. Speech act theory is foundation part of the study pragmatics. It was originally developed by philosopher J.L Austin (1975) as an attempt to explain the processes of how meaning are constructed within conversation. Speech act is act when the speakers say utterances.

3.1 Types of Illocutionary Act

Searle (1979) broadly classifies illocutionary acts into five categories, namely: assertive, directive, commissive, expressive, and declarative.

a. Assertive

The speaker is committed, in varying degrees, to the truth or false of a proposition, e.g. stating, informing, affirming, boasting, complaining, denying and others.

The example:

(1) No one makes a better cake than me

b. Directive

The speaker tries to get the hearer to do something, e.g. advising, asking, begging, challenging, commanding, recommanding, requesting and suggesting.

(2) Could you close the window?

c. Commissive

The speakers committed, in varying degrees, to result in an obligation to speaker. That is they commit the speaker to do something e.g. guaranteeing, offering, promising, swearing, threatening and vowing.

(3) I'm going to Paris tomorrow

d. Expressive

The speaker expresses an attitude and feelings about a state of affairs, e.g. apologizing, blaming, congratulation, pardoning, praising, thanking and welcoming.

(4) I am sorry that I lied to you

e. Declarative

The word or expression that changed the world by utterances such as bet, declare, resign.

(5) I resign from my office

4. Donald Trump

Donald John Trump (born June 14, 1946) is the 45th and current President of the United States. His instagram account is named @realdonaldtrump and have 21.8 million followers.

B. Relevant Study

Devita Indah Permatasari and Subyantoro (2020) who have research on the Facebook, Iswatiningsih, et al (2019) who have researched the hate speech on Instagram, Facebook, and News Portal, Subyantoro and Apriyanto(2020) who have researched on the Instagram and Facebook, and Wiana (2019) who has researched on the Facebook. The previous studies above, mostly have researched the hate comment on the personal account of social media. This current study has position in completing the previous study since this study researches on the visual tabloid.
